

The Eighth Annual Bonnehchere Authors Festival

The Eighth Annual Bonnehchere Authors Festival features many exciting Canadian authors this year. If you are looking for the latest titles by these outstanding writers, than look no further than the Admaston/Bromley Public Library.

- * July 7th, 2010 - Steve Heighton: *Afterlands "A superb work of the imagination - a blend of fact and fiction that is handled with grace and mastery. The shifting landscape of the narrative is perfectly paralleled by the shifting Arctic landscape and the wildly changing fate of the hapless souls trapped on the ice floe. This is Heighton at his best." - Helen Humphries

Both Afterlands and Heighton's newest novel, Every Lost Country is available at the library.

- * July 14th, 2010 – Catherine Gildiner: *After the Falls "The young woman we meet in After the Falls is sassy and cocksure, absolutely. But the book is more than simply funny and Gildiner... is not just outrageous. She is smart and caring, determined and enterprising, curious and brave." - The Vancouver Sun

After the Falls and Seduction, a mystery novel, are available at the library.

- * July 21st, 2010 – Maggie Wheeler: *On a Darkling Plain "This is a fascinating, haunting, and disturbing aspect of Canada's submerged past, which Maggie Wheeler literally – and literarily – brings back to the surface of our consciousnesses.

On a Darkling Plain, A Violent End, and The Brother of Sleep are all available at the library.

- * July 28th, 2010 – Ben Hoffman: *Peace Guerrilla "I know of no other book that gives such deep insight into the emotional, intellectual, and technical effort it takes to mediate peace. As a practitioner, teacher and mentor, Ben Hoffman 'walks the talk'; and Peace Guerrilla shows those of us who work for peace that we can make the world a less violent place." - Lisa Ibscher, Mediator, Nepal

Peace Guerrilla is available at the library.
